The 25th European Congress of Trauma and Emergency Surgery is meeting with the 8th World Trauma Congress

Stockholm. Europe's largest professional association for trauma and emergency surgery is joining forces with the World Coalition for Trauma Care (WCTC) – a strong sign of growing international cooperation. The programme brings together the best of clinical practice, research and systemic care, from new standards in emergency department care and innovative fracture treatment to global trauma prevention strategies.

With the motto "The Team – Together Each Achieves More", the two leading platforms for acute medicine, research and interdisciplinary exchange are emphasising the importance of teamwork in trauma care. This is the second time the two congresses have been held jointly. Over 1,000 experts from all medical disciplines involved in acute and trauma care are expected to attend.

The scientific programme includes pre-conference courses, interactive sessions, lunchtime symposiums and keynote speeches by internationally renowned experts. Numerous abstracts will also present the latest research findings on the diagnosis, treatment, organisation and prevention of trauma.

With scientific leadership from Congress President Shahin Mohseni MD, PhD, FEBS (EmSurg), FACS, and the WCTC led by Raul Coimbra, MD, PhD, FACS, the event's international significance in addressing key health policy and medical challenges is emphasised.

About ESTES / WCTC

The European Society for Trauma and Emergency Surgery (ESTES) is the largest professional association for trauma and emergency surgery in Europe. Thanks to its broad, multidisciplinary focus, ESTES plays a leading role in driving innovation and knowledge exchange, as well as the development of international standards of care.

Founded in 2012, the World Coalition for Trauma Care (WCTC) brings together societies and professional groups from around the world with the aim of achieving structural improvements in global trauma care. One of its key initiatives is the biennial World Trauma Congress.
